Dike Improvement To Be Studied At Jacksonville Meet

Plans were made at the Pahokee City Council meeting, Monday night, for Mayor Duncan Padgett, the city councilmen and E. Elliott Gross, city engineer, to meet July 17, at Jacksonville with the U. S. Army Engineers to discuss improvements to the levee here.

Since raising of the levee has already been approved by the government and plans are being drawn for this project, the city is seeking to save the trees growing adjacent to the levee, to provide better picnic and recreation areas along the levee between Pahokee and Canal Point, pave the top of the levee as a walk, widen the approach to the levee and preserve the "toe ditch" for drainage.

In other action, Monday night, the council:

Authorized payment of $14,000 from the Florida Power and Light franchise tax fund on the new $75,000 jail-police station addition. The city so far has prepared $19,000 in addition to the $10,000 due that was paid on the $75,000 six-year bond issue.

Accepted a vacant lot from Everglades Masonic Lodge on South Lake Avenue between the Hunt real estate office and Dr. R. C. Lane's office for a city parking lot. City police will be instructed to enforce two-hour parking there after the lot is paved.

Authorized a contract with Gannett, Fleming, Corddry and Carpenter, Inc. of Daytona Beach for $750 for a preliminary survey for a sewer system in the city.

Authorized a $5 per week raise for each of the city's five full-time police officers.

Authorized payment of $5 per

Cross-State Canal To Be Advertised

CLEWISTON — Routers for the Okeechobee Waterway herald the cross-state canal Tuesday as "the key to opening the whole interior of South Florida" for recreation and industry.

Representatives of six communities along the waterway, which runs from Stuart on the east to Fort Myers on the west, met to plan a dynamic campaign to advertise the almost unknown route through the bottom of the state.

The campaign will include a celebration commemorating opening of the waterway 25 years ago.

Paul G. Franklin of Fort Myers, who was elected to Head the new Okeechobee Waterway Association, stressed the dual benefits of the waterway and its potential for both industrial and recreational uses.

Lake Levels Show Gain In Florida

OCALA—Lake levels rose in all parts of Florida last month but the flow of North Florida rivers and streams was below normal.

Streamflow was about 80 per cent of normal in the northern half of the state. In the southern half it was above normal in some cases but the main stems of the St. Johns and Kissimmee Rivers were well below normal.

The average flows of Shoal River and Suwannee River were 84.5 and 78.3 per cent of normal, respectively. Silver Springs flowed 84 per cent of normal.

The flow of Kissimmee River averaged 31.9 per cent of normal; Miami Canal flowed at 55 per cent of normal. Although Tamiami Canal outlets showed no flow the first 12 days of June, the rest of the month there was enough to make the average 22 per cent of normal.

Although the levels of 18 selected lakes rose, all but two remained below normal.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene McDowell and family left, last weekend, to visit relatives in Bainbridge, Ga.

Changes that have been taking place in recent years in methods of retailing have increased greatly the importance of proper labeling on all manner of packaged goods now available to consumers.

There was a time when you went shopping for groceries at a grocery store. For meats you went to the butcher. For drugs and cosmetics you went to a drugstore. At each place you asked for what you wanted and an experienced clerk filled your order. He was prepared to answer any question you may have asked about the quality, ingredients, sizes, weights or what have you.

Not any more. Service like that is the exception today. The retail field has been adopting self-service so widely that the shopper is more and more on his own. And that's why the label on goods you buy—foods, or course, and many, many other items—is more important now than ever before.

Incidentally, while progressive retailers are automating their operations as much as possible, it is the increase in self-service which has enabled them to hold employment to a minimum. Just imagine the number of clerks a modern supermarket would have to employ to give you the individual attention you used to get at your neighborhood store.

In fact, these days you'll often see a distributor's or wholesaler's representative stocking his products displayed, because there just isn't enough help in the store to handle adequately all of the incoming merchandise.

As George P. Lerrick, commissioner of the Federal Food and Drug Administration points out, packaged items are designed to act as salesmen in today's self-service supermarkets, and "they should play fair with the consumer by telling her certain things about their contents."

Because our Department of Agriculture's inspections cover practically the entire range of edible products available for the dinner tables of Florida, we are closely concerned with labeling and the kinds of packages you buy.

In today's big markets, a retail manager will tell you, a product virtually has to sell itself. But, according to Lerrick, the selling function of the package has been emphasized to such extent as to obscure its function as a source of public information. Such information as the net weight of contents or the ingredients of the product too frequently is relegated to the far corners and the fine print so that the consumer has to search carefully and may even need a magnifying glass.

While on the subject of retailing, I've noted considerable concern expressed in various trade journals as to whether the nation may be getting "over-stored." More and more big markets are being built, and the "discount house" method of retailing is the latest rapidly growing development in the field. More and more big retail outlets, including national chains, are going into the discount house business, and many discount house operations have been adding food markets.

At a recent wholesale grocers association meeting the statement was made that "small regional food chains will go out of business under the pressure of the discount house because the latter has no need to make money on food."

It's only good sense to buy at the lowest price, wherever you may find it, providing, of course, that you get the quality and quantity you expect. For the average consumer, the discount house may offer an even better bargain than the big supermarket, which is all to the good for the housewife. But you can readily see that every retailer in the country has to be on his toes to make sure HE doesn't miss the boat in the competitive situation which is getting fiercer and fiercer in the retail field as time goes on.

I commented here recently on the increasing popularity of horse riding for pleasure.

Down in Miami a teenage group of 24 members known as the Sleepy Hollow Riders recently held a two-day horse show that must have been a very successful event. From the proceeds they presented a check for $100 to the Medical School of the University of Miami to advance the research work there on diseases of horses which is being sponsored by the Florida Committee on Equine Health.

My hat's off to the Sleepy Hollow Riders and I'm sure every lover of horses in the state is proud of the public-spirited attitude displayed by this teenage group.

"Today we need a nation of Minute Men citizens who regard the preservation of freedom as a basic purpose of their daily life"

—JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY

10 days after his inauguration as the 35th President of the United States.

Twenty years ago, in the dark, uneasy days before Pearl Harbor, the Minute Man of Concord, timeless symbol of our Nation's determination to defend its freedom, emerged as the emblem of the U. S. Savings Bonds Program. When war came, the Minute Man became the rallying force behind the huge and overwhelmingly successful effort to back our fighting men with War Bonds.

In this, the 20th anniversary year of Savings Bonds, the Minute Man of Concord calls all Americans to an unremitting effort to help preserve our peace and freedom, threatened by forces more powerful and resourceful than those we faced in 1941. Though this effort will take many forms, one way open to all is the continued investment in Shares in America, U. S. Savings Bonds, by "citizens who regard the preservation of freedom as a basic purpose of their daily life."

Picture of a Promise

*Sure, she's a grand old flag!
That's why we salute her.
That's why we pledge allegiance to her.*

*That pledge, in its simplest terms,
is another way of saying, "Count me
in. You're my country and I love you and need you. Your problems are my problems, and I'm with you all the way."*

Your country's biggest single problem is the perpetual responsibility for keeping the peace its people want. You can help with this problem by remembering this:

*Peace costs money. Money for military and industrial strength.
Money for science and education.
And money saved by individuals —
by you — to help keep the economy strong. Bonds provide this money.*

Freedom from enslavement of every kind is available through spiritual understanding of the mighty power of God. This is the encouraging theme of the Lenten Sermon entitled "God" which will be presented at Christian Science churches Sunday.

Bible readings will include this verse (Revelation 11): "We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, which art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy this selection will also be read (p. 228): "The enslavement of man is not legitimate. It will cease when man enters into his heritage of freedom, his God-given dominion over the material senses. Mortals will some day assert their freedom in the name of Almighty God."
